Miss Hammes celebrates 90 years as educator, singer and community staple

By JoAnn Lower

We knew her then as Miss Hammes, our physical education teacher. We know her now as Lolita, our friend.

"I found out since I retired that I was a very strict teacher but I don't think the kids resented it," she said. "If one was naughty, I made the whole class lie on the floor and hide their eyes. A couple of minutes later I'd tell them they could get up if they behaved. I didn't single out one child; they all learned to behave in my class."

Lolita was born and raised in Pocahontas, Iowa. "My name was supposed to be Jaclynn, but my oldest sister changed it to Lolita."

"My dad was at one time a shoe repairman and sold shoes in Pocahontas. After going broke during the Depression, he went into the chicken business, complete with a hatchery and produce station. I was more or less raised in the produce business."

"My mom was a kindergarten teacher when she was married and after that a stay-at-home mom. "I'm the youngest of eight kids and the most spoiled. The older kids spoiled me rotten." Of her family, Lolita is now the only one living.

"I graduated from Sacred Heart High School in Pocahontas without ever having a physical education class in grade school or high school, but I was a tomboy and played a lot of softball. Summers in Pocahontas I served as recreational teacher and coached a softball team."

Something we may not have known about Miss Hammes: She loves to sing. "My sister put me on stage in Pocahontas when I was four years old. My whole family loved to sing, sometimes staying up until the wee hours of the morning harmonizing."

So, when it was time for Lolita to head off to college at Briarcliff, she chose vocal music as her major. That is

WCDA gift cards available Monday

The WCDA will once again be handing out gift cards to students in Worth County that are in grades K-12, starting this Monday, August 1.

The gift card program will begin on Monday, August 1, through Friday, August 26, available from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday at the WCDA office in Northwood. The office is located at 91 Eighth Street North in downtown Northwood.

This year, each student will receive a $75 Visa gift card.

Only parents may pick up gift cards for their children.

Parents that received gift cards in 2021 must bring receipts from last year's purchases to receive a gift card in 2022.

Parents of students that are new to Worth County will need to bring a Worth County driver's license and school registration paperwork to receive a gift card.

No appointment is necessary to receive a gift card.

School board updated on activity center delays, sharing agreements

At the July meeting, the Northwood-Kensett board of education received an update on the finishing touches that are needed before the Vikings Activity Center can open to the public. They also were given an annual update on the staff and programs that are shared with other school districts.

Previously expected to open in June and more recently late July, N-K is waiting on the arrival of contractors to put in the finishing touches to open the school's new activity center.

Superintendent Mike Crozier said that the district has been showing off the facility as it awaits those last construction measures. He shared that he had given tours in recent weeks to U.S. Senator Chuck Grassley, as well as to alumni visiting for reunions.

They joined the growing list of former students envious of those that will get to put the center to use, as well as those in the community that anticipate its opening.

Before that can happen, Crozier shared what remains to be finished.

Perhaps the biggest project causing delays is the painting and finishing of the gym floor at the center of the facility, which will take time to put in place and then set before it can be used. Around the gym floor, rubber flooring needs to be added. Lines on the second floor's running/walking track are also needed.

The contractor that will do the work had been expected to begin several days before the July 14 meeting, but an estimate for when the work would actually begin hadn't been available.

Finishing touches are also needed on the buildings door and security

It's a zoo in there

The Northwood Public Library recently welcomed some unusual visitors in a chance for people to meet some unusual members of the insect and arachnid worlds. The Iowa State University Insect Zoo was at the library on July 19 as a part of the Summer Reading Program. ISU staff introduced visitors to a variety of insects, spiders, centipedes and other crawling creatures.

Rachel's Warriors debut fund-racing effort at Worth County Fair

The last day of the Worth County Fair brought the Figure 8 races, closing out five days of grandstand entertainment. For one family, it also brought a close to a unique fundraising effort to support the fight against cancer.

Amongst the cars zooming around the Figure 8 course on Sunday, June 19, was a purple vehicle carrying the names of several area businesses.

The color purple comes from the color worn by cancer survivors at the annual Relay For Life events, including in Worth County.

The names on the vehicle were from businesses that had donated to the Relay on behalf of Rachel's Warriors, the relay team of the Tweeten family.

RACHEL TWEETEN

Rachel Tweeten, Kensett, was first diagnosed with a rare brain cancer in 2005, at the age of 8. Two years later, after successful surgeries and treatments, Rachel was one of the 2007 Relay's honorary chairs.

until the day she saw some girls walking outside carrying archery equipment. "That's when I decided to become a physical education teacher and minor in vocal music."

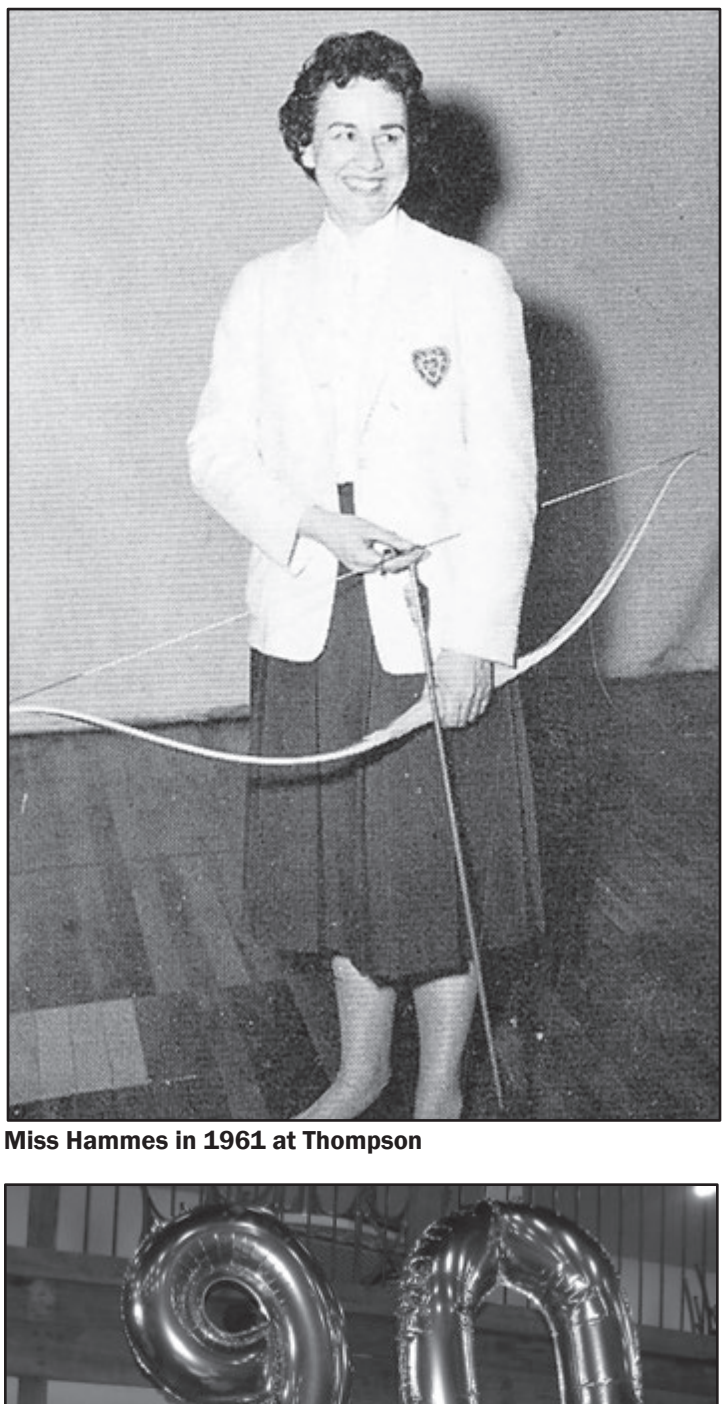

"I started as physical education teacher in Thompson in 1961. After that I taught three years in Marshalltown, then in 1966 came to Northwood and never left." Lolita retired in 1993.

"The thing that stands out in my teaching career is the number of team and individual sports I taught here in Northwood. Compared to other schools, Northwood probably had the broadest introduction to a number of different sports, so most kids were introduced to several sports."

"Softball was my favorite sport to coach, although I never coached softball in Northwood. I taught square dance starting in second grade and all the way through high school. The square dance kids from Kensett got to be in the Kensett Variety Show. I loved teaching."

Not only did Hammes love teaching, she loved dogs. To this day she continues to share her immense knowledge with other dog lovers.

"I grew up with a dog – an indoor dog and sometimes an outdoor dog. I got into purebred dogs when visiting my sister and after that began grooming my dogs. I raised and showed poodles, Shetland sheepdogs, Brussels griffons and miniature schnauzers. My biggest success was with schnauzers. I taught dog obedience in Lake Mills and Mason City and at one time was president of the Mason City Kennel Club. Up until the last 10 years I was busy in Kennel Club and after that quit raising puppies."

Miss Hammes in 1961 at Thompson

Now in her 90th year, Miss Hammes makes her home at Maple Court. She plays 500, puts 1,000-piece puzzles together and enjoys planting flowers around her apartment. "They're starting to bloom," she smiled. "So many kinds, so pretty." Lolita is close to Sacred Heart Church in Manly where for years she led the congregation in song and to this day continues to sing.

devices.

Also incomplete is some exterior dirt work, though that will not prevent the facility from opening for public use.

The board also approved offering staff a 25% discount on activity center memberships, as long as they have been employed a full year.

The school board also approved sharing agreements with several neighboring school districts, with staff serving a variety of roles and allowing the districts to meet state requirements.

N-K shares its superintendent, Mike Crozier, with the St. Ansgar district. The two districts also share N-K's transportation director, Daryl Love.

N-K and Lake Mills share N-K employee Kimberly Odegaard's services as curriculum director.

The N-K, Central Springs and St. Ansgar districts share human resources director Brooke Johnson, employed by the St. Ansgar district.

N-K also shares a library director with several school districts. The State of Iowa requires districts to have a staff member with a library-related degree. The shared position manages the districts' libraries to allow them to comply with the State requirement.

N-K, Central Springs and Lake Mills share a social worker.

When discussing the shared social worker position, board member Susan Kliment asked if they would have enough time to meet the needs of N-K students, especially with mental health issues being more prevalent since the pandemic.

Crozier said that he couldn't speak to whether the social worker role was completely met, but noted that there are other resources available to students through the school's counselors and through telehealth resources.

The shared agreements allow the districts to save money on the positions. The State of Iowa also provides financial incentives to districts that share staff.

In other business, Crozier shared that he had received advice from legal counsel in regards to the district being asked to pay more for a bus than originally approved.

At their previous meeting, the school board had learned that the company was asking for more money than had been approved through a bidding process before they would deliver the vehicle. The board had asked Crozier to look into the district's options.

Crozier shared that the district's attorney had advised that the cost of taking the company to court would likely offset the additional amount they were being asked to pay for the bus. Also, the company could not deliver and then the district would be without the bus that it has been waiting for.

The school board agreed to pay the additional money, but not without expressing their frustration.

Rachel

Since then, Rachel's Warriors, a team that includes her family and friends, has been a big part of the Relay For Life events and fundraising.

Those fundraising efforts inspired the purple entry in this year's Figure 8 races.

According to Rachel's mother Julie, "We had been planning to do a Pickle Ball tournament for a Relay for Life fundraiser in the winter months. Time got away from us and that idea never came to fruition."

So, where did they decide to turn for an alternative? The family car.

"The future of the Buick had been a topic of conversation in the Tweeten family text thread. In the chat, Ben suggested using it as some sort of fundraiser for Relay For Life. After some research and then finding out that the Worth County Fair was hosting a figure 8 race this year, we decided to build the car into a racer."

The car that was used for the fund-racing came to the family in the year after their battle with cancer began, in 2006. It has remained with them ever since. It started its life as the family vehicle, then was passed down to Rachel's brother Ben and had most recently been Rachel's car, until Rachel moved on to a new vehicle.

So, with a plan to enter the race, members of the family began converting the Buick into a safe race vehicle. The process started just one week out from race day. Ben gutted the car to make room for a roll cage to provide race organizer approved protection for the driver. The cage was found two hours away, brought to the family home, cut in half and installed.

Ben then worked with their father Brian to make other modifications. Six days of work in the evenings and weekends and the car was ready to race. Next it just needed some aesthetic work.

Rachel and Ben's fiance Amanda Jorpeland put on coats of purple paint, followed by Amanda applying the names of the donors to the Relay as vehicle sponsors.

Those donating to the Relay to get a spot on the vehicle included Asmus Farm Supply, Brevant Seeds, Doyle Carving Niche, Enderson Farms, Farm Bureau Financial Services - Ryan Hulshizer, First Security Bank & Trust, Hovey's Lawn & Garden LLC, Knudtson Automotive Services, Mark's Tractor & Implement Inc., North Iowa Co-op - Ryan Smith, R80, Red Barn Farms, Rockford Mini Storage, Rog T Inc. and T&A Farms.

Also painted on was the number of the vehicle, one of special significance for the family. Julie explained, "We chose the number 17 for the car as that is the number of years that Rachel has been a cancer survivor."

While Ben had been the intended driver at one point, he was still healing from a broken clavicle in March, and the seatbelts created potential issues. So instead, Rachel's sister Sarah volunteered to have her turn behind the wheel of the Buick.

It was a new experience for Sarah, having never raced before. She turned to the internet to find information and videos and asked people with racing experience for advice.

As the day of the race arrived, Rachel's Warriors brought in their vehicle and were cleared for the race.

"We received a warm welcome and a lot of support from the racers we competed against in the form of encouraging comments and unsolicited Relay contributions." That included those that are frequent competitors for race organizer, Gunderson Racing LLC.

When the race was over, rookie racer Sarah Tweeten, in the Rachel's Warriors #17 Buick car, finished in third place.

With the winnings, contributions of fellow races and supporters at the fair, and those that donated to appear on the vehicle, Rachel's Warriors raised $1,660 to be donated to the Relay For Life of Worth County.

So, what lies in the future of the rookie racing team? Julie said that they are considering selling the car to another racer, or potentially using it for a demolition derby. They want the old family car to get as much use as possible or to come up with other ways that it can support the family's passionate dedication to fighting cancer and supporting other survivors like Rachel.

U.S. Senator Charles Grassley recently paid a visit to the Vikings Activity Center in Northwood. While there he toured the new facility to learn more about the project. He met with employees of L.R. Falk Construction, which provided material for the center. Grassley also took a moment to answer some questions, with topics including the infrastructure bill, farm prices, biofuels, workforce issues, the national student free lunch program, child care and mental health programs. Grassley (center) is pictured with L.R. Falk employees and others at the front of the activity center that day.

Ribbon sale raises $55,725 for county fair youth exhibitors

The 2022 Worth County Fair 4-H Livestock Ribbon Sale once again raised funds to reward local livestock exhibitors for their time and dedication, while allowing local individuals and businesses the change to show their support.

On June 20, the ribbon auction was held. A total of $55,725 was paid for 90 show participants' ribbons. The average price paid per ribbon was $602.

Both numbers were up from 2021, when 78 participants received a total of $46,975.

"Top dollar" this year went to Emma Logeman, for her Reserve Champion Showmanship award in the Beef show. Logeman received $1,150 from R80. Logeman is the daughter of Brad and Bobbi Logeman and a member of the Green Shamrocks 4-H club.

The youth receiving the most for ribbons in the sale was Owen Binnebose, a member of the Grove Progressive Farmers and the son of Tyler Binnebose and Jessica Paulsen. Binnebose received a total of $2,450 for his Champion Junior Showmanship ribbons in the Beef and Sheep shows and a Champion Intermediate Showmanship ribbon in the Dairy show.

A total of 25 youth received $19,400 for their participation in the Beef Show, for an average of $776. The Beef show brought in the most in ribbon sales.

The livestock category that brought in the second most in sales was the Junior Swine Show. A total of $12,775 was paid by 26 bidders with an average price of $491 paid per ribbon.

The top ribbon price in the Swine show went to Holden Willrett, who received $700 for his Champion Pen of 3 ribbon, from LR Falk Construction. Willrett is the son of Brian and Heidi Willrett and a member of the Golden Banner 4-H club.

Total sales in the Junior Dairy Show reached $9,600. A total of 16 bidders paid an average of $600 for ribbons from the Dairy show.

The top price in the show went to Lane Knudson, receiving $925 for a purple ribbon, from Russ and Kirsten Meyer. Knudson is the son of Kevin and Nicole Knudson and a member of the Golden Banner 4-H Club.

In the Junior Sheep Show, 14 ribbons sold for a total of $8,700, at an average of $621 per ribbon.

Kamryn Backhaus got the top price of $900 for her WBI Market Reserve Championship from Falkstone. Backhaus is the daughter of Brett and Jacki Backhaus and a member of the Golden Banner 4-H Club.

A total of 9 ribbons earned in the Junior Goat Show were sold for $5,250, for an average of $583 per ribbon.

The top Junior Goat Show sale went to Brekken Haberman, who received $850 for his purple ribbon from Brian and Becky Haberman and Nelson Alternative Livestock Auction. Haberman is the son of Brad and Sammie Haberman and a member of the Grove Progressive Famers.

DNR weighs options for brain-eating amoeba

By Jared Strong
Iowa Capital Dispatch
www.iowacapitaldispatch.com

State officials are considering whether to test more lakes, put up warning signs and launch a public-awareness campaign after a Missouri resident who swam at a southern Iowa lake recently died after being infected by a brain-eating amoeba.

"We're having those discussions about what happens next," said Tammie Krausman, a spokesperson for the Iowa Department of Natural Resources. "Our general philosophy is making sure we tell you the risks and try to weigh them. We want you to be focused on the higher risks."

Drowning is one of those risks. From 2010 to 2020, the state averaged about 30 unintentional drowning deaths each year, according to Iowa Department of Public Health data.

And the state monitors its recreational beaches for bacteria concentrations and algae toxins, which can cause infections and skin irritation. Last week, the DNR said people should avoid swimming at 12 of those beaches because of elevated levels of those bacteria and toxins.

The beach of Lake of Three Fires near Bedford remains closed as tests of its water are pending for Naegleria fowleri, an amoeba that eats bacteria in lake sediment but can kill people if it gets deep into their noses. Infections are rare: There have been about 150 document infections in the United States in the past 60 years, although research suggests that many might go undetected. Four people in the country are known to have lived after being infected.

Someone from Missouri who recently swam at the lake died July 7 — one day after tests confirmed the person was infected by the amoeba.

The amoeba most often afflicts children, but the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services has declined to identify the age and gender of the person who recently died.

"Because these cases are so incredibly rare and out of respect for the family, we do not intend to release additional information about the patient which could lead to the person's identification," said Lisa Cox, a spokesperson for the department.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is testing water from Lake of Three Fires for the presence of the amoeba. If confirmed, it would be the first suspected case of someone being infected by it in Iowa.

Most of the documented infections have been in southern states — Texas and Florida account for nearly half of them — but they have also happened as far north as Minnesota, according to the CDC. The amoeba is most prolific when water temperatures reach the high 70 degrees and warmer.

The CDC does not generally recommend testing rivers and lakes for the amoeba because it's assumed to be widely distributed and there is no confirmed relationship between its water concentrations and risk of infection.

Annual warnings about the amoeba are common in southern states, and public officials have posted signs at public swimming areas that tell of its presence.

Krausman said the DNR will decide how it will proceed after tests of Lake of Three Fires water are complete.

Bethlehem Lutheran Church marks 100 years in the Manly community

By Kathy Kruger

Dedicated December 10, 1922, as the Manly English Lutheran Church, the church known today as Bethlehem Lutheran will celebrate its 100th anniversary this Sunday, July 31.

The theme for the celebration is "Moving Forward in Faith." Events will start the day with a 10 a.m. worship service with Holy Communion led by Pastor Linda Prestholt. There will be special music by former members, Donald and Dennis Meyer. Also participating in the service are two former ministers: Rev. John Meyer and Rev. John Schroeppel.

A special program with interviews of members sharing memories and stories, and with a solo by Lori Pflieger entitled "This is the Place," follows the service. A video of past memories will also be shown in the afternoon.

A no-cost luncheon of pulled pork sandwiches is available followed by an afternoon of activities and fellowship. A 100th Anniversary Booklet sharing photos and the history of the church will be distributed. Keepsakes of church ornaments will also be available.

The history of Bethlehem Lutheran began in 1920 when families wanting to form a new church met Sunday afternoons in different homes. Lutheran pastors from surrounding communities took turns leading the services.

In 1922, a small white frame church was purchased from the Kensett Lutheran congregation at a cost of $2,500 and moved to a site at 300 Main Street. There were 97 charter members. The first permanent minister of the new church was Rev. G. K. Mykland, who arrived on August 1, 1922, from Mt. Carroll, Illinois.

One of the unique adornments in the 1922 church was a floor to ceiling painting titled "Easter Morn" by Pastor Mykland's wife. Painted in 1922, it was displayed over the alter.

In 1954, the current brick church building was constructed at a cost $88,000 at 428 Walnut St. at the western edge of Manly. The name of the church was changed to Bethlehem Lutheran at that time. Featuring a modified Gothic design, it includes the "Easter Morn" painting, prominently displayed in the narthex. The church spire was added in 1972 and in 1975 an addition was constructed to house classrooms, chapel and offices. This addition has now been turned into a ground-floor Fellowship Hall since 2004. The Sunday School rooms are now in the basement.

Also, in 2004, we voted to join our church with Grace Lutheran in Hanlontown to become Hope United Lutheran Parish. Pastor Linda Prestholt is the minister for both churches.

Bethlehem has solar panels to help with the cost of electricity. We have a generator to be used in emergencies. Since the onset of COVID, Pastor Linda and helpers broadcast weekly worship services to bring the Word of God to many. On April 25, 2021, we voted to expand our Parish to include Bethany Lutheran Church and Elk Creek Lutheran Church from the Kensett area to join Hope United Parish. We are blessed to have Pastor Linda and nine other lay preachers to have weekly services at each location.

Bethlehem Lutheran is affiliated with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America. Current pastor is Linda Prestholt. There have been 21 pastors in the history of Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

The anniversary organizing committee invites all in the community to join in the worship and celebration.

2022 North Iowa Tractor Ride

Bethlehem Lutheran hosted the North Iowa Tractor Ride on Friday, July 22. Lunch was served to 235 riders and support crew. Next Sunday, July 31, Bethlehem is hosting a celebration of its Centennial. Forgive All Injuries

Notice that the sixth act of spiritual mercy says to "forgive all injuries." Thus, we are called upon to forgive all those who wrong us, no matter how large or small the injury. Not only is this good spiritual advice, but it is also good from the mere perspective of human relations. At times, this can be incredibly difficult, especially if we have been wronged gravely or repeatedly by someone who seems intent on harming us. However, by forgiving those who have harmed us, we "bury the hatchet" and thus end the conflict and any associated animosity. Otherwise, we are sure to keep the conflict running and thus increase the possibility of being injured in the future. Great acts of forgiveness are some of the most morally beautiful actions, and often lead to reconciliations which were not thought to be humanly possible. Consider that in places like Rwanda, where acts of genocide were carried out, victims who had their entire families murdered have somehow found it within themselves, and with the help of God, to forgive their enemies. We too should reflect on whether we are carrying around any old grudges and thus have not forgiven all injuries. And then, with God's help, truly forgive them.

Put on then, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, and patience, forbearing one another and, if one has a complaint against another, forgiving each other; as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive.
– R.S.V. Colossians 3:12-13

Cook Bookin'

We may live without poetry, music and art; We may live without conscience and live without heart; We may live without friends; we may live without books; But a civilized man cannot live without cooks.
Bulwer Lytton, Edward Robert

It's HOT outside, too hot to light the oven or stand over the stove for any serious cooking. But, the grill can come to the rescue on these dog days. "Good Times, Good Grilling: Surefire Recipes for Great Grill Parties" was authored by Cheryl and Bill Jamison, very prolific cooks and recipe developers (2005, HarperCollins Publishers Inc, NYC) They stress in this cookbook that cooking for friends is about the friendship, the sharing of good food and good times and shouldn't be intimidating. Since burgers are usually the all-time favorite for outdoor cooking, we'll adapt a few of the recipes from this book for our day-to-day family enjoyment and not limit it to entertaining.

"Ordinary" Homestyle Hamburgers

2 3/4 pounds ground chuck. NOTE: Chuck is indicated because of the amount of fat that is found marbled in the meat. To cook on a hot, dry grill you don't want beef any less than 80% lean. The rendered fat will drop into the fire; really lean beef will end up tasting like sawdust!
1 cup real mayonnaise
6 large, soft burger buns
3 tablespoons bottled barbeque sauce
Crisp iceberg lettuce
1 1/2 teaspoons kosher salt
6 thick slices ripe tomato
1 teaspoon freshly-ground black pepper
6 cooked slices of bacon
Slices of sweet white onion, dill pickles, American cheese slices, sweet pickle relish and whatever additional toppings you enjoy

Combine the mayo and barbeque sauce in a small bowl and set aside. Fire up the grill for two-level cooking: hot coals or flame on one side and medium heat on the other side. Mix together the meat, salt and pepper. Gently form into six patties, 1/2 to 3/4-inches thick. They should hold together but don't pack them tightly or they will become tough when cooked. Grill the burgers over the high heat side of the grill for 1 minute per side. Move them over to the medium heat side and rotate them a half-turn to get nice criss-cross marks on the burgers. Cook for 4-5 minutes on each side or until barely pink in the center. Just after the second flip, add the sliced cheese if you are making cheeseburgers. NOTE: DON'T press down on the burgers with your spatula. That sends all the good juices out of the meat and down into the fire which eliminates a lot of flavor from your sandwich! Toast the bun halves at the edge of the grill if desired, then place the buns on a large serving platter. Top each with a finished burger and let everyone complete the dish by adding the toppings of their choice, including the "special sauce" you have made. Enjoy the compliments!

Gobble Burgers

The best meat for this dish is boneless turkey thighs. They can be difficult to find so you can substitute boneless chicken thighs. Don't use chicken or turkey breast; it's too lean and will not hold together in the patty. Have the butcher grind the turkey (or chicken) and try to use it the same day for maximum freshness.
2 pounds freshly-ground turkey thighs
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
6 large onion rolls
Lettuce leaves
Dry Rub:
1 tablespoons PLUS 1 teaspoon dried thyme
2 teaspoons crumbled dried sage
2 teaspoons freshly-ground black pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons kosher salt
1 teaspoon ground white pepper (optional)

Stir these ingredients to combine well and set aside for later. Combine the ground turkey, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Gently form into six patties about 1/2-inch thick. They should hold together firmly but don't compact them. This meat tends to be soft so if it is difficult to form them, place the meat into the freezers for 5 minutes, then proceed. Sprinkle the dry rub over both sides of the turkey burgers. Grill uncovered over medium heat for about 9 minutes per side, until medium brown and crispy with a fully-cooked interior. Mix the mayonnaise and mustard together, combining well. Spread this over both cut sides of the onion rolls. Cover with a lettuce leave and then a hot burger. Serve immediately.

Porky Burgers

2 pounds ground pork
6 large burger buns, split
1/2 cup medium diced yellow onion
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
1 can (4oz.) diced green chiles, hot or mild
1 cup fine bread crumbs
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
2/3 cup crumbled, cooked real bacon

Gently combine the ground pork, eggs, diced onion, bread crumbs and spices. Drain the diced peppers well and gently stir them into the meat along with the crumbled bacon. Form into six patties of the same size and grill over medium heat, uncovered. Cook about 8 minutes on each side, flipping only once. Don't press down with the spatula. Internal temperature should be about 165 degrees F. Toast the buns along the sides of the grill if desired, then top each bun with a burger. Serve with desired toppings such as mustard or ketchup or barbeque sauce.

There are so many other meats that can be made into burgers: chicken, lamb, salmon and more. One trick is to mix the meats and other ingredients gently, with clean hands, and not press them together. And…that's all she wrote.

Iowa to celebrate Fruit and Vegetable Week

Recognizing the importance of the state's specialty crop industry, Iowa Gov. Kim Reynolds has designated July 25-29 as Iowa Fruit and Vegetable Week.

The weeklong celebration recognizes the state's 1,084 vegetable and 1,714 fruit operations, the nutritious products they produce and the consumers who depend on locally sourced fruits and vegetables.

Each day of the week holds a special focus. Monday is Growing Iowa's Economy; Tuesday is Growing Iowa Fruits; Wednesday is Growing Iowa Vegetables; Thursday is Growing Market Connections; amd Friday is Foodie Friday.

"While Iowa is often associated with corn and soybeans, growers in the state also produce some of the highest quality fruits and vegetables grown anywhere in the country," said Maury Wills, president of the Iowa Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association. "Fortunately, fresh Iowa-grown fruits and vegetables are easy to find at farmers markets, farm stands and on-farm retail markets located throughout the state. Now is the time to stock up on your favorite Iowa grown fruits and vegetables."

Iowa's commercial horticulture industry contributes $48 million to the state's economy each year. The most recent statewide survey of commercial horticulture production in Iowa, released in 2017, showed that the top five crops in 2015 were tomatoes, pumpkins, cucumbers, green beans and winter squash.

Meyer is also executive secretary of the Iowa Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association.

Follow the Iowa Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association Facebook page for social media updates on the week. Be sure and tag your own social media posts with the hashtag #IAFruitVeggieWeek22.

Curb Appeal

Marty Miller and Kim Helgeson's yard was chosen for the first Curb Appeal award of 2022, presented by the Green Thumb Garden Club. In choosing the home, Nitcher said, "Located at 701 Fifth Ave. North they have done an excellent job with their front yard landscaping. When they moved in one year ago they started with a blank slate. They added the brick edging, perennial flowers, bushes and grasses as well as some annual flowers in planters. The mix of foliage really makes their front yard beautiful and worthy of this award."

How to sell unwanted burial plots

Dear Savvy Senior,

How do I go about selling unwanted burial plots in my hometown cemetery? When my parents died about 25 years ago my husband (at the time) and I bought two plots near them in the same cemetery. But we've gotten divorced since then and have both moved out of state. Besides that, I would like to be cremated instead of buried.

Looking to Sell

Dear Looking,

Life changes such as relocating, family disputes and divorce, along with the growing popularity of cremation in the U.S., is causing more and more people to sell previously purchased burial plots they don't intend to use any longer. But, depending on where you live and the location of the cemetery, selling a plot can be difficult. And, if you do sell it, you'll probably get less than what you initially paid for it. Here's are a few tips to get you started.

Contact the cemetery: Your first step in selling your unwanted burial plots is to contact the cemetery and find out if they would be interested in buying them back, or if you're allowed to sell them yourself to another person or family. And if so, what paperwork will you need to complete the sale and is there a transfer fee?

Some states require sellers to offer the plot back to the cemetery before selling it to others.

Selling options: If you find that it's OK to sell your plots yourself, many people choose to use a broker. There are a number of companies, like PlotBrokers.com and GraveSolutions.com, that will list your plots for sale and handle the transaction for a fee and possibly a commission. If you go this route, you'll sign paperwork giving the broker permission to work on your behalf. Listings can last up to three years or until the plots sell.

Alternatively, or simultaneously, you can also list them yourself on sites like The Cemetery Exchange, GraveSales.com along with eBay and Craigslist, and handle the transaction yourself. In the ad, be sure to post pictures, describe the area where the cemetery is located and give the plot locations.

What to ask: Appropriate pricing is key to selling your plots. It's recommended that you find out what the cemetery is selling their plots for today and ask at least 20 percent less. If you're pricing too close to what the cemetery charges, there's no incentive for potential buyers.

Beware of scammers: If you choose to sell your plots yourself, it's not unusual for scam artist to reach out and try to get your personal financial information. Phone calls tend to be more genuine than emails and text messages.

Donate them: If you don't have any luck selling your plots, and if money isn't an issue, you can donate them to charity such as a religious congregation, a local veteran's group or an organization that aids the homeless. To get a tax deduction, you'll need an appraisal, which a cemetery or broker may supply for a fee.

Ponderings from the Batt Cave

By Al Batt writer, speaker, storyteller and humorist.

Echoes from the Loafers' Club Meeting

I've been doing some naked sunbathing in my yard.

Why on earth are you doing that?

So my neighbors will build a privacy fence for me.

Driving by Bruce's drive

I have a wonderful neighbor named Bruce. Whenever I pass his drive, thoughts occur to me. My wife and I have a summer home. It's also our fall, winter and spring home. People have told me they have become mosquito bites wearing clothes. I haven't encountered intolerable numbers of those biting insects and I am going to try some wheatgrass as a repellant when I do.

MoonDogs and hot dogs

Thanks to a kind invitation from Rod Meyer of Mankato, I got to see the Mankato MoodDogs play baseball. The MoonDogs play in the Northwoods League, a collegiate summer wooden bat league where such MLB stars as Matt Scherzer, Chris Sale, Matt Chapman, Brandon Crawford and Pete Alonzo honed their skills. As a trained spectator, I'm good at watching ball games. I spent time in a luxury suite made from shipping containers talking with 1,804 old friends and new friends, and eating a hot dog. I cheered, but not loud enough to fracture a vocal cord. The MoonDogs got loose and defeated the Willmar Stingers. Why is it called a hot dog? There are many possible reasons. In the mid-1800s, immigrant German butchers sold variations of sausages that were thin and long, like a dachshund. They called these dachshund sausages. Over time, the phrase may have been bastardized into hot dog. An 1895 issue of the Yale Record poked fun at the idea of Germans eating dogs. In 1901, New York Journal cartoonist Tad Dorgan penned a drawing of a dachshund in a bun with the caption "hot dog!" due to his inability to spell the breed's name. The original "Where, Oh Where Has My Little Dog Gone?" was allegedly a reference to a dog gone missing in sausage meat. My hot dog was all hot, no dog and toothsome.

Further noise

What are the Seven Dwarfs doing today? Happy is staying off social media. Bashful, nobody knows. He won't say. Sneezy is a hay-fever consultant. Grumpy could be anyone who disagrees with you. Doc, after his medical license was revoked, is making YouTube videos. Sleepy owns a company that manufactures rock-hard pillows. And Dopey works for a pharmaceutical company.

I wonder

If everything is possible, why do we need the word "impossible"?

Are buttons as cute as a button?

Why don't things ever spiral into control?

If Earth ever considers doing a little housecleaning by turning off the gravity for a few days?

How did Marco Polo find himself?

Why is the word "abbreviation" so long?

Do gymnasts prefer flip phones?

Bad joke department

What do you call a potato with no feet? A potato.

Does the Popemobile have a Catholic converter?

There was a big brawl at Finkeeper's Fish House. Battered fish were everywhere.

When a billionaire dies, who inherits his senators?

What word becomes shorter when you add two letters to it? Short.

A new law says barbers can't cut hair any longer. What do you get when an elephant sneezes? Out of the way.

Robert De Niro will star in the new movie, "Uber Driver."

Nature notes

A friend, Kim Eckert of Duluth, wrote sagely that the swallows in Minnesota could be divided into three sets of two. The blue ones (purple martins and tree swallows) nest in birdhouses. The brown ones (bank and northern rough-winged) nest in the ground (sand piles or riverbanks). The ones with dark red throats (barn and cliff swallows) construct mud nests. I find the masonry skills of swallows fascinating. Barn swallows create mugs and cliff swallows construct jugs.

A Navajo prayer is, "With dew about my feet, may I walk. With beauty before me may I walk. With beauty behind me may I walk. With beauty below me may I walk. With beauty above me may I walk. With beauty all around me may I walk." While walking, I saw a river otter. I think his name was Harry Otter.

As a tour leader, I took countless group photos. There are the magic words, those with enough weight to make others smile. I'd say prunes, say cheese, smile, smile you're on Candid Camera, whiskey, lottery winners, cabbageheads, what are you smiling at, and duck snort. A duck snort is a softly hit ball that goes just over the infield and lands in the outfield for a hit. Chicago White Sox announcer Ken "Hawk" Harrelson popularized the term.

Meeting adjourned

Feel free to be kind for no reason whatsoever.

The goosefoot challenge

By Ron McMullen

Our family recently drove from Sioux City to Iowa City and noted the beauty and bounty of Iowa's farmland. Hayfields were dotted with big round bales waiting to be collected, covered with plastic, and turned into Leviathan-sized white caterpillars. The few oat fields we saw suggested horse owners lived nearby. On the outskirts of Iowa City we drove past a field of miscanthus, a giant Chinese grass used as an experimental biofuel and soil retention crop. But mostly it was corn and beans, beans and corn. In fact, these two non-native plants comprise about 94% of Iowa's crops (corn 53%, soybeans 41%).

Why? Because farming is a business, and corn and soybeans provide farmers the highest incomes. My wife often laments Iowa's duo-crop ag environment, arguing that "Iowa's rich soil should be used to grow food, not fuel." Yes, 120 acres of parsnips or rhubarb would add crop diversity to a farm, but given market, political, labor, and the technological realities of Iowa in 2022, it would lower the farmer's income.

Today, out of every 10 rows of Iowa corn, almost six go into ethanol production, and another three are turned into feed for Iowa's 3.8 million cattle and 24 million hogs. Iowa's soybeans are used for a wider range of products, including biofuel (40%), exports, livestock feed, human consumption, and industrial oils. Most Iowa soybean exports go to China, where much of it is turned into what Benjamin Franklin called "bean cheese," or tofu, as we know it. (If tofu were commonly called "bean cheese" today, would Iowa's dairy farmers be as miffed about that phrase as they are about "almond milk?")

As dependent as Iowa farmers are on ethanol and biofuel markets to make farming corn and soybeans profitable, what happens when the demand for liquid fuel decreases, as it surely will? Farmers – and all Iowans -- need to be thinking about alternatives. Industrial hemp got some folks excited, but it has not lived up to expectations. Several years ago I visited a hazelnut farm in southern Minnesota, where the farmer told me "anything you can do with a soybean you can do with a hazelnut." He also noted that deep-rooted hazelnut bushes are perennials, thus offering huge advantages in soil conservation. While the University of Minnesota is actively researching the commercialization of hazelnuts in the upper Midwest, I'm not holding my breath.

When the first humans arrived in Iowa, perhaps 13,000 years ago according to scientists, there was no agriculture. Paleo-Iowans hunted, foraged, and scavenged for food. "Mom, not Giant Sloth roast for supper again - I'm sick of it!" Soybeans, originally from China, weren't commonly grown in Iowa until the 1900s. Corn, domesticated in south-central Mexico, didn't appear in Iowa until around 4,000 years ago – meaning Iowans lived without corn for 9,000 years. How did we ever get along without it?

In part, ancient Iowans relied on the plant called goosefoot as a primary source of food. Today goosefoot is commonly considered a weed (like last year's corn sprouting among this year's beans). Sometimes called Lamb's Quarters, goosefoot is a distant relative of quinoa, an Andean food increasingly popular in Iowa. According to the Office of the State Archeologist, goosefoot accounted for 50 to 90 percent of identifiable small seeds found in some prehistoric sites in Iowa.

Yet, goosefoot seems to have had lost out to corn by the time the French explorers Jolliet and Marquette paddled to Iowa in 1673. Could goosefoot be revived as a commercial alternative to corn? Almost certainly not. Its revival on a hobbyist level, however, could serve an important purpose.

Thus, I'd like to issue what I call the Goosefoot Challenge: I'll pledge $100 to the first winner of a blue ribbon at the Iowa State Fair for a goosefoot food product made from goosefoot grown by the blue-ribbon winner. Of course, this category is not yet part of the Iowa State Fair, but it should be. Perhaps a goosefoot bread, cereal, porridge, crisp, or fritter? Maybe 4-H members would be interested, as might student groups at Iowa State, FFA clubs, gardeners, Living History Farms, hobby paleo-horticulturalists, the World Food Program, and those interested in better understanding Native American history? Folks at Interstate Welcome Centers could offer samples of the winning goosefoot food product to arriving travelers as "An Original Taste of Iowa." Governor Reynolds could host a Goosefoot Cuisine Night at Terrace Hill.

Of course, the real motivation for issuing the Goosefoot Challenge is to get Iowans thinking about alternatives to our duo-crop agricultural economy. If changes in climate, technology, and/or politics make corn as archaic as goosefoot, what happens to Iowa's farmers, small towns, and the entire fabric of our state?

The coal miners strike that has been in effect since last April is assuming serious proportions and an early settlement seems improbable. President Harding has taken action in the matter but his recommendations to date have met with little favor.

The extensively advertised mountain goat team that is making a tour over the Glacier Trail, hitched to a miniature "prairie schooner" accompanied by Fred Osler and Dave Burlingame, Master Scouts from the University of Minnesota, reached Northwood and remained here overnight, camping in the tourist park.

The home of Geo. E. Whitcomb was the scene of a gathering of relatives and friends to pay their respects and offer congratulations to a couple who have been privileged to celebrate an anniversary that few have the pleasure of enjoying. This couple is Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Whitcomb, pioneer residents of Worth County and Northwood, who were married 60 years ago March 24 but owing to the absence of their son Geo. E. at that time and for other obvious reasons the celebration was deferred.

Miss Jane Wiley, county nurse, returned to Northwood from Seattle, Washington, where she had been in attendance at the National Red Cross Nurses Convention. Miss Wiley was gone from Northwood several weeks, including in her western trip a visit to the national parks and many other points of interest.

Hanlontown turned out and voted on bonding the town $8,000 for lights. There were 79 votes for and two again the proposition. The lights are to be furnished by the Iowa-Minnesota Power Company of Albert Lea and will be in order before fall.

Edwin Alertson, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Toy Alertson of Northwood, was killed in a hay baler accident on the Orlin Grow farm five miles west of Northwood. The First Lutheran Church was filled to capacity for funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Christian Notsund, pastor of Deer Creek Lutheran Church.

Mrs. John Holt Jr. and three sons of Cedar Falls are visiting relatives in this vicinity preparatory to leaving for Frankfurt, Germany, where they will join Mr. Holt and make their home. Mr. Holt has been in Germany since December serving as an agricultural instructor.

Senator Leo Elthon of Fertile attended the first meeting of the special committee appointed to make a survey of the road needs in Iowa. The meeting was held at Ames. At an organization meeting held earlier in Governor Blue's office in Des Movies, Senator Dykhouse of Rock Rapids was named as chairman and Senator Elthon as secretary of the committee.

The modern Farmers Co-operative elevator at Joice, destroyed July 1 in a $40,000 fire, will be rebuilt. This decision was made by a unanimous vote of all 77 share holders and patrons attending a special meeting at the Joice school auditorium. Work will start at once on the mill replacement, and it is hoped the mill will be ready for use by late fall, according to Maynard Hamsund, elevator company manager.

Jackie Plowman, Northwood High School senior next year, registered for Hawkeye Girls State at Grinnell. She is one of 200 girls from all parts of the state who will have a week of training in government in action, sponsored by the Iowa Department of the American Legion Auxiliary.

"It's unbelievable" said the Anchor photographer as he watched the Norwegian elk hound pictured, furnish power to operate an antique tread mill at the Lester Luckason home. This piece of antique equipment is said to be over 100 years old and was used to separate milk, run a fanning mill or has even been known to run presses in printing shops. See this at the "Kiddie Farm" at the Worth County Fair.

Months of preparation by exhibitors and officials alike culminate when the 94th annual Worth County Fair opens its four day run on July 30, at the fairgrounds in Northwood. The newest feature of the 1972 Worth County Fair will be an officially sanctioned RCA rodeo scheduled.

Glen Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis, rural Northwood, will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture at South Dakota State University, Brookings, August 3. Davis has accepted a position with the Colman, S.D. school system, where he will teach agriculture and physics, be advisor to the junior class, FFA advisor and hold a class in adult farmers' education.

Two families of Kensett United Methodist Church are participating in the Friendly Town program by having children from Waterloo as members of their families for two weeks. Nanette Horton, 10, is with the Wayne Dutcher family of Kensett, and Donald Brown, 14, and Linda Anderson, 12, are members of the Marian Burgett family, North Northwood, for the period. Both families have children of the same ages as their guests.

Stacy Davidson and Craig Lease teamed up on the cinder track many times in the past, but never for a cause as important as this. Davidson ran sprints and hurdles for Lease's Northwood-Kensett High girls track teams back in the late 1970s. As track and field rules prohibit coaches from mingling with their athletes on the track during meets, Lease had to sit in the stands while Davidson ran.

On June 9, 1997, 40 N-K Girl Scouts and 10 adults spent the day at the Minnesota Zoo. The bus, admission to the zoo and the ride on the mono-rail were all paid for out of the profit the Girl Scouts made when they sold 250 Northwood afghans.

Rural Northwood resident Sheldon Estes and American Red Cross nurse Joan Hamill exchanged pleasantries during the Red Cross bloodmobile's special visit here. Estes and 52 other area residents each donated a pint of blood during the bloodmobile's stop at Wesley Hall in the Northwood United Methodist Church.

The Northwood-Kensett Complex is under construction and on schedule for the football field to be ready for the first game of the year. The improvements include a new entrance and ticket booth, which is pictured with the recently added "Northwood Kensett" overhead. From the entrance there will be a flag post and welcome area and sidewalks to the visitors and home sides of the field. As the football field turf continues to grow, work continues on the surrounding track features and the press box and bleachers, as well as the exterior landscaping details.

A sign of speeds to come

The City of Northwood recently updated its speed signs for those traveling into the city. The signs tell people their speed as they approach, or may tell them they need to slow down, as seen here. The signs also record speeds so that the city and law enforcement can get a better look at informaton on how many people are traveling too fast when they enter town, as well as information on when that happens the most and other data that could be used to curtail speeding.
